Wind blamed for two fires

Black Lake cottage blaze and Tulip Road grass fire both suspected by fire officials to be caused by downed hydro lines

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

A cottage on Black Lake, south of Minden near Moore Falls, was destroyed by fire the night of April 16.

The blaze began as a brush fire that eventually engulfed the building and was first responded to by fire crews from the City of Kawartha Lakes, which has a shared services agreement with the Minden Hills department.

'They went up by boat first to see where it was," said Minden Hills fire chief Doug Schell.

The cottage was in the area of Manhattan Drive, off of Community flower basket solution blooms

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

There may still be hanging flower baskets in downtown Minden this summer.

In a 4-3 vote a January meeting, Minden Hills councillors voted to scrap hanging baskets from the 2012 community services budget. The reason for the cut was not the $2,000 cost for the baskets, but the $3,500 for the staff and machine time associated with watering them.

There have been staffing reductions in the community services department.

However, that decision did not sit well with some citizens and at an April 12 council meeting, community services director Rick Cox brought forward a proposed solution from the community.

Calling themselves the Minden Village Decorating Committee, the group has sought the help of the Minden Kin Club, which has agreed to donate the flower baskets.

Carey's Garden Centre has agreed to water the baskets once a week, on Mondays.

On top of that, more than 20 businesses have agreed to chip in for and take care of additional flower barrels throughout the community.

While Cox's recommendation in his written report had been to allow the donated baskets to be hung and accept one day of watering a week from the garden centre, keeping the baskets healthy would require more frequent watering.

"Nothing's changed since January . . . we still have limited staff," Cox told councillors.

While members of the group had hoped the township could help with watering the baskets while watering the existing planters downtown, Cox said this would mean an additional half-hour to 45 minutes of work per watering day, which he didn't find feasible.

The decision made in January may still be the right one to go with," he said.

The department waters planters three days a week, four

Councillor Brigitte Gall, who noted the flower basket situation had become "a very big issue," applauded the efforts

"I think it's as close to a BIA [business improvement area] as we have ever had," she said.

Councillor Larry Clarke said he had been approached by a local business owner about council's January decision, asking for it to be reversed.

"It's very important for downtown businesses to have the flowers," Clarke said, adding one suggestion had been to hang the baskets at a lower level over the existing planters to facilitate easier watering.

"Unfortunately though, Rick is saying his department can't water the hanging baskets," Reeve Barb Reid said.

Reid said it would take the agreement of two thirds of council to undo a prior council decision.

However, if the community were willing to make sure the baskets were watered frequently enough, it seemed like council might allow the plan to proceed.

"There could be a way to get this all done if the community wants to assume full control of the baskets," Reid said.

Cox will be talking further to his department and to the community group and bringing his findings back to coun-

Shoes recovered from Titanic help identify baby

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

The story of the Titanic was told time and time again last week as international media focused in on the century anniversary of the world's most famous shipwreck.

One Dorset couple has a personal connection to the tragedy that continues to fascinate generation after generation.

In fact, Earle and Sandra Northover helped to solve one of the many mysteries created when the magnum opus of the White Star Line plunged to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean on April 14, 1912.

At the time, Earle's grandfather, Clarence Northover, was a police sergeant in Halifax, one of many officers assigned to guard and, in some cases, dispose of belongings from passengers of the Titanic.

"The police were stationed to protect against souvenir hunters," Sandra says, adding they had been instructed to burn all clothing, possibly to protect against typhoid However, when Clarence came upon a tiny pair of leather shoes, they were spared from the burning heaps.

"He didn't have the heart to put them on the fire," Sandra says.

Of Clarence's four sons, one had died in infancy. Sandra believes this may have been part of the reason Clarence kept the

She also believes that Clarence thought they might help to identify someone's child.

But no one came to came to claim the shoes and they stayed in a box at the police station until Clarence retired in 1918. When he moved to Toronto, he took the shoes with him and they were eventually left to Earle's father, Kenneth.

An engraving marking the footwear as being from the Titanic was put on the soles and Earle said his father would show them to people from time to time.

"I knew he had the shoes," he says. "It wasn't as big a thing as it today."

The shoes would be left to Earle and, passing up an opportunity to put the shoes up for auction (where they might have sold for tens of thousands of dollars), the Northovers contacted the Maritime Museum of the Atlantic in 2002.

"In the back of my mind, I could hear my dad and grandfather saying, 'Get them back to Halifax", Earle says.

However, at first the museum was reluctant about taking the shoes.

"Apparently they have a lot of people who claim things are from the Titanic," Sandra explains.

However, when the Northovers took what they knew to be genuine artifacts to Halifaxbased Titanic expert Alan Ruffman, "he just lit up," and began a process that would have the shoes researched at Lakehead University before travelling to research facilities in the United States for further forensic investigation.

Results showed the shoes were from the wreck and the Northovers gifted them to the museum in 2005.

But that wasn't all.

Extensive research led to the Goodwin family in England.

It was eventually determined that the shoes had belonged to an unknown male baby, one who'd been picked up after floating for six days and buried with an ornate headstone in Halifax's Fairview Lawn Cemetery by the crew of the Mackay-Bennett, the ship that recovered his body.

Through DNA testing, experts were able to match genetic material from the grave to relatives in England and identify the boy as one-year-old Sidney Goodwin, a third-class passenger who'd boarded the ship with his family in Southhampton.

The entire family died in the disaster and Sidney's was the only body recovered.

"Boy, did I feel good that we did the right thing," Earle says.

And perhaps somewhere, his grandfather feels good too.

Internet not expected for Haliburton until next summer

Original timeline changed from this fall to summer 2013

Angelica Blenich

Staff reporter

Haliburton County residents will have to wait longer than anticipated before they receive high-speed Internet.

A recent media release issued by the Eastern Ontario Regional Network stated a local access contract had been awarded to Bell Aliant by the Eastern Ontario Wardens' Caucus, enabling more than 24,000 homes and businesses with improved Internet connectivity.

However, unlike a previous release issued by EORN indicating Internet would be available by fall of 2012, the recent statement said broadband will be up and running by summer 2013.

The change is the result of a typographical error and not a disruption in the project's timeline, said Farah Tayabali, communications support specialist for the project.

The contract will include portions of Haliburton County and part of Peterborough County, according to the release.

This is the sixth of several contracts awarded to complete the project and the error over the project's timeline may have come from confusion over details of the Haliburton County contract, said Tayabali.

"I think it's a consequence of the fact there were several contracts all signed that have slightly different timelines," she said.

The project is being funded by federal, provincial and municipal governments and private sector investment and totals $170

EORN is a not-for-profit organization established by the EOWC to manage all contracts awarded as part of the project.

Minden Hills firefighters went back the next morning to water hotspots on what had been the site of the cottage.

Crews from the Ministry of Natural Resources also assisted in battling the blaze and were still investigating Schell said he believed the cause of the fire to be a downed hydro line caused by the severe winds the area experienced Monday night.

On top of the fallen lines near Black Lake and Tulip Road, the department received another call Monday night for a downed line on Bethel Road.

There was another brush fire in the Deep Bay Road area on Easter weekend which was attended by the MNR and the Minden Hills department.

"Things are really dry . . . we need a lot of rain," Schell said, advising the public not to do any burning until some precipitation comes.

Minden Hills planner retires

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

Retiring Minden Hills planning administrator Elinor Kernohan was given a standing ovation in the township's council chambers last week.

Beginning her municipal career in 1966, Kernohan held various administrative positions in area townships over the decades, becoming the first female in some of those roles.

As she presented an emotional Kernohan with a letter and gifts from council, Reeve Barb Reid said Kernohan had been a valuable source of knowledge for councillors

At their April 12 committee-of-the-whole meeting, councillors voted to make Lakefield-based EcoVue Planning and Design Services the township's new planner.

It will cost the township about $30,000 for the year to have a planner on staff three days a week.

EcoVue principal Heather Sadler has been doing consulting for the township for a number of years and will not be billing the township for mileage.

"They had the best to offer," said Deputy-reeve Cheryl Murdoch of Ecovue's bid.

MH to introduce emergency service standards for private roads

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

Residents of private or unassumed roads in Minden Hills may want to ensure the conditions of those roads are up to snuff.

Minden Hills councillors received a draft policy from fire chief Doug Schell at their April 12 committee-of-the-whole meeting outlining standards that need to be maintained if residents of those roads want access to emergency services.

Among those requirements are that roads have a clear width of not less than 3.6 metres; have an overhead clearance of not less than 4.3 metres unless the service provider establishes an otherwise suitable height; having a turnaround area on dead-end roads that can facilitate emergency vehicles; that surface treatments and bridges are able facilitate emergency vehicles; that roads be free of potholes; and that roads be free of fences or other structures that may prevent crews from reaching their destination.

Schell said the intent of the policy was to direct property owners as to how to best maintain their roads for easy emergency access, not to put financial strain on them.

Reeve Barb Reid said she'd like to see a notice about the policy, which must still be passed by council, included in the township's mail-out tax bill.

Councillor Larry Clarke said local real estate agencies as well as lake associations should also be made aware of the policy.

Pickin' for people

THERE ARE SOME events here in the Haliburton Highlands that reaffirm what a truly remarkable community this is.

Saturday night's Haliburton Hootenanny was one of those events.

Orchestrated and promoted by banjo-wielding restaurateur Shawn Chamberlin and always-affable Canoe FM morning man Mike Jaycock, the musical evening was a fundraiser for Places for People, the local affordable housing corporation that recently purchased its second property (P4P's first project was the renovation of the old

Orange Lodge in Haliburton Village into affordable apartments). It will be converting a home in Carnarvon into a duplex that will house two families. From teenage indie pop-rockers to an aged but razor-sharp crooner who's seen most of the past 100 years, a bevy of artists donated their time and talent to the cause. There were also a number of items donated for a toonie auction.

Certainly there were many libations, much merrymaking and plentiful pickin' and grinnin' but there was also an overwhelming sense that something important was being achieved.

This was a Saturday night crowd with a purpose. One acquaintance remarked at the end of the night that we'd accomplished what we'd come to do and he was right.

The evening raised nearly $2,000 for the new P4P project. Yeehaw.

Fancy footwork

It's no wonder the story of the Titanic continues to spellbind people a full century after the disaster. The famous catastrophe is something stranger, more fascinating and more tragic than anything the most accomplished novelist or screenwriter could concoct.

Myriad mysteries were created the night the ship took its unexpected trip to the floor of the Atlantic.

At the risk or appearing to cheaply hock my own work, if you've not already given it a gander, the story about a Dorset couple with a compelling connection to the Titanic (on page 3) is worth a read.

Inheriting a pair of baby shoes from the wreck, the Northovers, forgoing the option of putting the items up for auction, donated the footwear to the Marine Museum of the Atlantic in Hali-

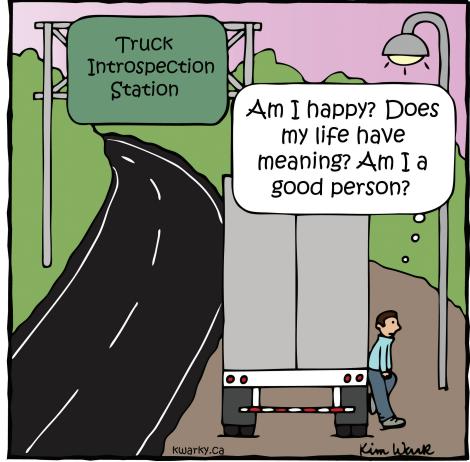

Extensive research into the shoes allowed for the identification of the body of one-year-old Sidney Goodwin, whose corpse was recovered in the days following the sinking, but whose identity remained unknown for decades.

It's a story stranger and more wondrous than any work of fiction.

Solution for flower baskets

To the Editor,

I believe it's time for business and council to take a fresh look at having a new BIA for downtown Minden. It seems to an outsider both parties desire to keep the downtown area open and a place to visit. The township has spent millions in the area, money that could have spent elsewhere in the township.

Business and residents are willing to help to promote the downtown area as stated in the article.

It would be the best time to reopen the BIA idea as BIAs have, in the past years, developed into superior groups with a strong base of support and information in this province.

BIAs deal with all matters from parking, traffic, events, local improvements, advertising, farmers markets, etc.

FTER HEARING ABOUT the incident that befell American pop star Demi Lovato in Venezuela, I can't help but be a little shocked and worried. Yes, her adoring teenaged fans got through 17 huge bodyguards and close enough to mob her and pull at her

That's love - and also really bad bodyguarding.

More than that, it is one of the occupational hazards of celebrity.

And, as you probably have guessed, it's the risk a locally-renowned and much-beloved columnist must endure. Neil told me so.

So far things haven't got too crazy,

But, between us, I do fear the day that my legion of fans will rush me - preferably in a public place, in front of credible witnesses - and tear off articles of my clothing.

This more than anything is why I wear three pairs of underwear.

The good news is that, unless I remove my shirt or allow people access to my inner ear, I can't offer my adoring fans much hair to pull on. But that's little comfort.

That could have very well

As a fellow celeb, I can't help but feel for Demi. Her fans seem unruly and more than a bit wild.

Mine on the other hand are the best in the world.

I call them the silent, well-behaved legion.

Even though there are thousands of them and they are virtually everywhere I go, they clearly understand and respect my need for little to no recognition. Not one bit, I tell you...

It can't be easy for them. But let me tell you, I truly appreciate the fact that > they don't rush me in restaurants. Or give me preferential treatment in the grocery store when I have 11 items in the 10 or less check-out line. Although, I mean it was just one item over....

I can't tell you how much I appreciate not ever being asked for an autograph or being approached by young groupies wanting me to sign various body parts.

Although, I do carry a Sharpie for just such as occasion.

That's the good part of living in this community though. People are so used to seeing celebrities like that they hardly flinch when someone points out their photo in the newspaper and says, 'That's me! I wrote that!'

Oh, the fans here are cool, I tell you. It's almost as if they aren't thrilled to be in your presence.

They're subtle, too.

Just the other day in the checkout line in the grocery store I needed to get cash back from the debit machine and the cashier made me sign an autograph. I suspect, even now, there's probably a bidding war on eBay for it.

Don't get me wrong - I'd rather you didn't pull my hair. I don't need that kind of validation.

On a totally unrelated issue - I'm getting hair extensions next week.

Up in the boondocks

Steve Galea

Beyond 35

THE BROWN DOG Jiggs and I really don't want to leave Sapsucker Ridge, but Murray Fearrey says it's time for those of us who live Back of Beyond to move into

So Jiggs and I have been thinking of a place in the village, maybe an apartment over a store on Main Street with a big picture window so Jiggs can sit and watch the ambulances race by.

For Jiggs and I are good citizens. When the man who has been the kingpin of county politics since a moment after time began says we ought to move, what choice have we but to start packing?

Murray offered this way to speed up ambulance response times at a meet ing of Haliburton County council a couple of weeks ago.

"We have to get the population out of the boondocks to cut back on the amount of time it takes to get to them," said Murray, who is county warden for the umpteenth time and has been reeve of Dysart et al since a moment after time began.

When I read Murray's remarks in this newspaper, I looked for the punch line, but evidently nobody laughed when he said it.

Now, my dictionary says that the boondocks is slang for wild, desolate, or unhabitable country which is how all of Haliburton must look from south of Highway 7.

Up in the boondocks. Shades of Billy Joe Royal. Let's just roll up the whole county population in a blanket and empty it out in Willowdale.

That dictionary definition is pretty broad. Maybe Murray, who usually is right about most things, should explain what he means when he speaks of the boondocks.

Most of the roads in Haliburton are not municipal. Summer maintenance is improvised and winter plowing unlikely, a challenge for ambulances and fire trucks.

Should anybody who lives on a privately-maintained road be declared a boondocker and forced to move into town? Does water-only access make you a boondocker?

There is a story from years ago of a discussion of private roads by a gaggle of Dysart politicians. When the councillors realized that most of them lived on private roads, they perceived a conflict of interest and found something else to talk about.

The story may be apocryphal, which is the best kind of political story; tales of questionable authenticity often win elections. But I digress.

Boondocks? Where? Why do we even allow folks to live in Highland Grove and Fort Irwin and Buller if ambulance response times are all that matter?

If Murray keeps his hand on the rudder, will Dysart stop issuing building permits for those monster cottages going up on the north end of Kennisis Lake?

Folks trusting in Dysart's good faith already have built cottages up on Little Redstone, about as far into the boondocks as you can get without a float plane. Will the cottagers get a refund if they flee to one of those new condos in Haliburton Village?

Murray's solution would be less troubling if he were not usually a purveyor of such good sense. It might have come from Queen's Park or Bay Street, whose policies have been hollowing out rural Ontario for a century

No school. No bank. No gas pumps. No post office. Make it a policy - no living in the boondocks.

Rural life is inefficient, I guess, though Jiggs thinks efficiency is overrated. We ought to arrange our lives to better serve government, instead of the other way around.

Some of our boondockers are old Haliburton, folks whose homes are their heritage, but most of us who live deep in the woods or on some remote lakeshore chose to do so.

If we had wanted to live in town, we might have stayed wherever it is we came from. We knew when we moved here that the first response to emergencies would have to be our own.

Time will fray our lives until our defects force us to move closer to safety, but not for now. Just listening to the quiet justifies the risk that goes with isolation.

As for the ambulances, they do the best they can under the circumstances we hand them, and that's good enough for me. If I die on an over-long ride to safety, at least my life will have been worth living.

Salary concerns cause debate

To the Editor,

Re: Oh Doctor!

I understand.

I get the need for austerity, I guess my only concern is that people tend to attack the salaries of those who keep the lights on, save lives, protect the streets, etc. whenever this discussion comes up. While looking at their situations/pay/etc. is always good, and the right thing to do in the event a "reset button" needs to be hit, let me tell you what gets my ire up, gets shockingly little discussion and should bother you too:

1) Tax evaders gone wild (paid cash for anything lately?)

2) People who think it's OK for Rogers, Bell, Exxon, Imperial oil, etc. CEOs to make tens of millions of dollars on our backs because it's "private industry."

Be advised! If schooling, policing, power generation, roadwork, etc. were left to private industry and the subsequent collusion you see in gas prices, cable bills, etc. became the norm, the line between the rich and poor will be appreciably more dramatic. Remember: tax cuts to the wealthy corporations, with no guarantees or commitments for job growth, comes out of your pocket (i.e is publicly funded) in the form if increased monthly bills and goods/ services costs, etc. You should care about this.

If the mentality of the province is to drive all of the good people out of the public service because their compensation is seen as "lucrative" this will happen — bye bye doctors and nuclear engineers — believe me what you are seeing now in terms of the dividing line between the rich and the poor is the thin end of a very thick wedge.

They host radio shows, maintain trails, plan golf tournaments, marshal runners, cook dinners, hold hands of the sick and visit the elderly. Volunteers in Haliburton County do it all.

According to staff at various not-for-profits across the Highlands, many of their activities would cease without the hundreds of volunteers that help out every week.

'It's a cliché by now to say that without volunteerism this community would grind to a halt. I would say that without volunteerism, there would be a very diminished sense of community," says Places for People president

Fay Martin.

"Because we have many retirees, not much employment, huge distances, and few public facilities, people become community by doing voluntary things together. I think volunteerism is the route to helping seasonal residents who become year-round residents to integrate themselves into the year-round experience, which is quite different than they experienced as cottagers. It's a way for them to give to this community in its year-round fullness, and by so doing, to root themselves into a new life."

Martin's organization, which provides affordable housing in the county, involves dozens of volunteers, with 11 spots on the board of directors. They have recently purchased a second property in Carnarvon to be made into two

"[Volunteers] are the heart and soul of the organization," Sheila Ziman, president of the Haliburton Highlands Land Trust, said.

"We could not have accomplished what we have done without volunteers," she said, including protecting nearly 600 acres of ecologically sensitive lands, doing biodiversity research and providing education sessions for government and the public. The land trust has 77 volunteers doing a plethora of tasks from paperwork and board service to installing signage, clearing brush and running the yearly gala.

SIRCH volunteers are the change agents of our community," says community co-ordinator Nancy Brownsberger, "They bring to each and every day the hope and optimism that makes our community an incredible place to live."

The community services organization has 89 volunteers, but would like 120 to provide hospice support, run the community kitchen, host nutrition programming, children's programming, special events, fundraising and more.

The motivator for volunteers is the "pay it forward" philosophy.

"At SIRCH, there is a culture of volunteerism as described by the volunteers and they state that for them, making a difference in the lives of others is their sole purpose."
At the Haliburton Highlands Health Services

Foundation, volunteers sign up to see the hospitals and long-term care facilities grow.

"They also take great ownership of what they do and the benefit for the hospital. They always want to know how much money they helped raise for their hospitals," executive director Dale Walker said.

There are three regular volunteers at the foundation, and scores of others that help run all of the foundation's events including the Rotary Charity Golf Classic and two-day radiothon, sit on the board and stuff letters for fundraising campaigns. At Canoe FM, there are 91 people who come in to do everything from host radio programs to tend the garden.

"Canoe FM gives volunteers the opportunity to meet so many people and our volunteers are always thrilled when they can help people find something that is missing; reunite listeners with their animals or solve a problem when someone calls," she said.

At Community Care, volunteer co-ordinator Brigitte Gebauer has compiled comments from those who give their time to her organization.

"One cannot fully explain the personal reward for being there when another human being is in need," writes volunteer Kim Antoni in Gebauer's document. "The blessing we receive is knowing we've made a difference in someone else's life, whether delivering a meal, taking someone to an appointment, a phone call or a visit. We are serving a purpose. It's a cycle and right now, we are very fortunate to be on the giving side."

Gebäuer översees about 130 helpers, but said they can use more, especially for the Meals on Wheels program, which requires drivers and runners to deliver food across the county.

Volunteers are amazing. Before I moved to the Haliburton Highlands I didn't realize the impact this group of dedicated individuals can make to a community," Gebauer said.

"For the Minden Terry Fox Run, co-ordinator Diane Peacock believes the special day gives volunteers "the good feeling that they have made a difference.

Our volunteers register the participants, help with counting the funds received, do our barbecue, greet participants when they come back, work the water stations, help with the set up and take down of the site, community policing and we have the radio club and they help monitor our route," Peacock said.

Ziman echoes those sentiments. "I believe our volunteers feel they are making a difference and are helping to protect our natural heritage for future generations. I believe they get great personal satisfaction and a sense of accomplishment putting their skills to work. There are often tangible results for the efforts," she said.

For those interested in volunteering, the annual Volunteer Fair will be held at the Haliburton Curling Club June 9. Volunteer Week in Canada runs from April 15 to 21.

It looks like some of Minden Hills's public portable toilets are headed down the john.

The discontinuation of the abodes was discussed during an April 11 Minden Hills committee-of-the-whole

The cost for pumping a portable toilet increased from $130 in 2011 to $145 in 2012, representing an 11.5 per

The pumping costs for the township last year were $6,000 and that budget was reduced by 10 per cent for 2012.

Shepherd Environmental Services, the only company that submitted a bid, will be the township's service provider for the year.

In light of his financial concerns, it was Cox's recommendation that council do away with a few of the township's lesser-used portable potties.

One of these was at the Horseshoe Lake beach (Cox pointed out there are washrooms just a few hundred metres away at the whitewater preserve) and another at the Ingoldsby ball dia-

"That one I do have a concern with," said Reeve Barb Reid. "If it's not used all that much, it doesn't have to be pumped that much."

One annual event that takes place at that site is the Canning Lake Property Owners' Association's fun day.

Councillor Jean Neville said the toilet does get used.

"I see vehicles parked in there using it all the time," she said.

Councillor Brigitte Gall wondered about the toilets at Panorama Park since it is close to the village of Minden, but Cox recommended those abodes stay because of the park's pop-

There are portable toilets at the cemeteries in Minden, Gelert and at Twelve Mile Lake Church and councillors thought perhaps removing those made the most sense.

"Why would people be hanging out at cemeteries having to use the washroom?" Neville asked.

In addition to the portable toilet at Twelve Mile Lake Church, there is one at the adjacent public beach.

The possibility of removing one portable toilet from the fairgrounds was also discussed.

Friends of the Rail Trail to host biodiversity event

Friends of the Rail Trail will be hosting a celebration of biodiversity along the Haliburton County Rail Trail after members of the county's economic development committee recommended approval of a special event application from the group at an April 11 committee meeting.

Critters on the Trail - Wow, what Biodiversity! is scheduled to take place June 9, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The event will require that the trail from Haliburton Village to Donald be closed to motorized vehicles during these hours, since the Friends' risk management policy doesn't allow its events to take place while vehicles are on the trail.

The group's May 20 and May 27 Rail Trail Rambles were lost after council decided to allow ATVs on the Rail Trail beginning May 14 this year (the previous start date had been June 1.)

Friends of the Rail Trail have received International Biodiversity funding to host the event.

New funding buoys county pool study

Angelica Blenich

Staff reporter

The concept for a swimming pool in Haliburton County is beginning to float.

After months of dedication and commitment, the County Swimming Pool Initiative led by chairperson Gay Bell announced they have raised $35,000 to complete a market demand feasibility study, a step forward their hopes to see a pool built within the region.

The news came during a press conference held at the Minden Community Centre on April 12, where the committee announced they were also successful in receiving significant government dollars towards the study.

On behalf of the Haliburton County Development Corporation, Patti Tallman presented Bell with a $10,000 cheque from the Eastern Ontario Development Fund.

Along with support from HCDC, the committee also treceived a $16,000 Ontario Trillium Foundation grant, presented by Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock MPP Laurie Scott and foundation grant review member Klara Oyler.

Both Scott and Oyler congratulated the committee on their successful grant application, which was prepared with help from the Haliburton and District Lions Club.

There is a lot of work that goes into applying for these grants. I want to extend big congratulations to Gay for your leadership," said Similar congratulations were also extended from Minden Hills Reeve Barb Reid and Algonquin Highlands Reeve Carol Moffatt, however, both were unable to attend.

"I'm delighted that we now have the funding in place to move ahead with the research that will answer that very important question [if we have enough community support for a Haliburton YMCA] ... We're a small county with limited resources and we need to make sure we don't go down a path that the community can't support," Reid wrote to the committee commending them for their hard work and support of the project.

As county liaison to the committee, Moffatt wrote she was "looking forward to the next steps to determine how this project can play out in the community for the benefit of all citizens.

The committee is now in the process of considering a proposal from Leisure Plan International to determine if a pool and recreation complex is sustainable in Haliburton

The study will not only include questions about the public's desire for a swimming pool but also a recreation centre, said Bell.

"The consultant that we hire will help us determine certain factors, such as how much money are people willing to pay," she said.

Conducted through phone surveys, the primary purpose is to get a representation of the demographics that make up the county, ultimately determining if a pool is sustainable.

Bell and committee members are hopeful those who are contacted by phone answer questions in a positive manner.

Talk to people you know about why they might need or want a pool," Bell said.

Other local organizations extended support for the idea of a complex as well, including the Haliburton Rotary Club and the Aging Well Committee.

"By pursuing this initiative we will retain and attract new residents thereby increasing the vitality of our local businesses. We will increase the health and well being of our aging population and our youth. We will increase resilience in our community at a time when creating stronger, bolder communities has never been more important," said

Rotary club president Brian Nash.

There are many reasons a pool is needed in the community, including health benefits, the desire for local recreation programs and to support children and youth, said Bell. After nearly drowning in a lake in Peterborough at the age of 32, Harvey Bates decided he wanted to learn how to swim.

Now the committee member is one of the most vocal supporters of the proposed recreation centre.

Bates thanked those in the community. especially Bell, on their dedication to getting the necessary funding in place for the study.

"It took a shocking amount of work," he

The committee is hoping to have the finished im the next few months.

Once completed, it should help determine how high a hurdle the county has to overcome to construct a pool, said Bell.

The YMCA has shown interest in a recreation complex, however, before getting involved the organization requires a market study be done.

The YMCA's involvement significantly increases the likelihood of long-term sustainability for this project, according to the CSPI.

One person in attendance asked how they can convince people to support the idea, to which committee members stressed the economic benefits a pool will bring to the area, as well as the money saved from driving to pools outside the county.

The group has researched multiple locations for such a centre, narrowing down the options to a few municipal properties including behind the Minden Community Centre and on Harburn Road in Haliburton Village. Previous thoughts of building it near the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School are no longer a viable option due to the land being owned by the Trillium Lakelands District School Board, said Bell.

We would have to buy the land from the school board in order to put the pool there, as they are not willing to donate it," she said.

The committee is hoping the study will deliver positive results and more direction over what type of facility is built, whether it be YMCA, county or municipally directed. If the study comes back stating a swimming pool and recreation centre is not sustainable in Haliburton County the group will continue to examine their options, including if the county increase taxes to cover the operating costs, said

The group is the third committee to try to build a pool in Haliburton County since the 1990s, according to Bell.

The house was full and the tunes were loud on April 14 as more than 130 people clapped their hands and raised $1,800 for Places for People.

Held at the Dominion Hotel in Minden, the Haliburton Hootenanny drew a wide variety of musical guests who performed in support of the charitable organization that provides affordable housing to low-income families. The line-up of talent included Sheri Hawkins, Albert Saxsby and Amelia Edmunds, Chad Ingram and the comedic stylings of Lo and Mo.

Hosted by master of ceremonies Mike Jaycock, the evening also included a toonie auction, with all funds raised going to support Places for People's current project.

The organization recently acquired a home in Carnarvon for $180,000 and is in the process of renovating it into two separate units, said Harvey Walker, who is co-ordinating the renovation.

The organization is now looking for funds from the community to help pay down the mortgage and assist with renovation costs.

Fine-tuning tourism promotion

Chad Ingram Staff reporter

Last week councillors on the county's economic development committee learned what the municipality's got going for it and what it needs to work on when it comes to tourism promotion.

Richard Innes of Brain Trust Marketing and Communications gave an overview of premier-ranked destination framework project his company is performing for the Haliburton Highlands during an April 11 committee meeting. It's a process his firm has provided for 33 other commu-

"Once the work has been done, these destinations have a very clear picture of what they need to do," Innes said.

Perhaps unsurprisingly, Innes said the Highlands' biggest tourism attractor is its water- and land-based recreational opportunities, ones that can be enjoyed year-round.

Its second biggest asset was its arts, cultural and heritage attractions.

'You have two solid reasons why people are currently coming to the destination," Innes said.

Something it's lacking is what Innes called the animation of public spaces, including buskers and street performers.

'Currently, you're not doing those types of things on a regular basis," he said.

Nor under the framework are the Highlands currently considered "hospitable" or "good value for money."

Once the work has been done, these destinations have a very clear picture of what they need to do.

> — Richard Innes Brain Trust Marketing and Communications

In order to gain a better of understanding of how these goals can be achieved, "we need to start asking our guests," Innes said.

The bulk of the people visiting the Highlands are from the GTA and Durham and York regions and many stay at > private homes and cottages. Innes said cottagers need > to be treated as tourists.

"We want them to leave their property," he said. Minden Hills Reeve Barb

Reid was looking for an example of how the county could better leverage its seasonal population to get out

Innes responded the best way to do this was to ensure they knew what was going on in the area.

He had a number of recommendations which included adopting a tourism action plan, building growth around the two key attractors, exploring opportunities for hosting more sporting events and embracing the recently introduced ambassador program.

That program encourages area residents and business owners to become promoters of local tourism by taking a flash course in customer service and being part of a database that will keep people up to date on area events and activities. The county, which is restructuring its economic development and tourism department to focus solely on the latter, will be holding a tourism town hall meeting at the Haliburton Legion on May 7.

Girls' tournament marked by passion and energy

Photos by Riley Maracle Special to the Times

The Minden Car Quest Highland Storm Bantam B girls travelled to Mississauga this past weekend to take part in their first Ontario Women's Hockey Association Provincial Championship. The girls were in a pool with Sudbury, Lucan-Irish and Etobicoke.

The first game against Sudbury was a hard fought nailbiter. The Storm girls had to get the rust off quickly, having not played a game in over a month. Sudbury scored the lone goal marker of the game mid-way through the first period off a poor clearing attempt during the penalty kill, with the opposing D shooting a puck through a maze of players and finding its way through the five-hole and into the back of the net.

They battled the talented Lady Wolves tirelessly every shift but could not find the net to even the score. Even with the goalie pulled late in the game, the Storm girls could not find a way to put one past the Sudbury net-

The game was one of the best contests of the year but the final score was 1-0 in favour of the opposition. A wonderful first game tourney (one of our best games all year) effort where a lot of energy was left on the ice in the heated contest.

The next game, Saturday night, the Minden Car Quest Bantam Bs took on Lucan-Irish. Again, the girls worked hard and relentlessly the entire game, pushing their opponents every shift of the game. Lucan-Irish jumped out to an early 1-0 lead, but the Storm squad did not give up.

Even after a late Lucan-Irish goal in the second period, the girls never quit. Sydney Feir finished off a nice give and go to draw close 2-1 in the third period, but the Lucan-Irish squad capitalized on another missed clearing opportunity and put one past Connor Marsden to make the score 3-1; also the final score.

The two losses made the Storm girls' third game of the tourney on Saturday a spoiler game against Etobicoke Dolphins - who had tied Sudbury in their second game. Etobicoke proved to be another strong squad pushing the Storm girls to dig deep to take on their talented opponents. Etobicoke scored a fluky early in the first period that dipped, skipped and bounced its way finding the back of the net.

With a little wind taken out of their sails, the girls fought back firing a barrage of pucks at the Etobicoke net-minder. Erin Little made a nice rush early in the third period to tie game at 1-1. The Dolphins never quit and late in the third period snuck in a power play marker off another failed clearing attempt by the Storm squad. Final

Many scoring chances lost was the drawback of the weekend. But solid goaltending by Connor Marsden kept every game close. The girls were in every game but could not muster enough scoring punch to move them into the final 12 teams in the Ontario Championship with continued play on Sunday.

The weekend was a true play-off battle where our Storm girls showed their passion for the game in tightly checked and fast paced, high energy games. Our "Don Cherry muckers" worked tirelessly and relentlessly all weekend trying to extend their hockey season.

There's good news from Gay Bell and her hard working team from the County Swimming Pool Initiative! Last Thursday, MPP for Haliburton-Kwartha Lakes-Brock, Laurie Scott, joined the Haliburton and District Lions Club to celebrate really good news for the community. The club was awarded a $16,000 grant from the Ontario Trillium Foundation to undertake a project aimed at determining the feasibility of creating a County Swimming Pool and Recreation Centre.

The Haliburton and District Lions Club served as the County Swimming Pool Initiative's community partner in applying for the grant.

The Lions Club has supported SIRCH hospice, Community Care, the food banks and other local agencies designed to help seniors who exist on meagre budgets. In a statement from David Mills of the Lions Club he sees a gap in opportunities for both young and old in our county to access valuable rec-ber 2009 and has been active in reviewing all the aspects of this proposed centre such as site, exploring possible partnerships with the YMCA and the Trillium Lakelands District School Board. They have been in contact with all levels of government promoting this initiative, building public support, awareness and fundraising for the feasibility study.

Haliburton County Development Corporation (HCDC) announced its contribution to this project in January 2012 with the condition that the committee was able to raise the balance of the funds needed for this study. Patti Tallman, community economic development manager for the HCDC presented Gay Bell, chair of the County Swimming Pool Initiative with a cheque for $10,000. This funding was made available through the Eastern Ontario Development Fund through FedDev Ontario, a Federal government agency.

Carol Moffatt commented to this endeavour - "As county liaison to the community I extend congratulations for the hard work and look forward to the next steps to determine how this project can play out in the community for the benefit of all citi-

The team can now move forward and hopefully successfully give us a county swimming pool and recreation centre. This is really great news and I have a suggestion for the site - Carnarvon! Please? Our fundraising dance at the Carnarvon Bowl and Restaurant last Saturday turned out really great. There was an opening band called Victoria Secrets that started off the evening which was an added bonus to ticket holders. Victoria Secrets is a group of students ranging from 15 to 19 years of age from a school band from the Adult Education Centre in Haliburton. Victoria Secrets opened the show with a mixture of original and cover tunes. Greg Shantz, teacher and band leader says, "One of the tunes they chose was Come Together by the Beatles. I think it was a perfect choice for the band and for this show. In this band, anyone can join, everyone is welcome, everyone has input, and this is a place where everyone can feel like they belong. This is just like the aims of Haliburton Community Living." How beautifully put!

They have some of their music on YouTube for those of you that missed their act. Enjoy!

Then Carl Dixon came on and did his usual great show I have seen Carl perform many times and it is always a pleasure! At the show Carl announced that Haliburton Community Development gave them a grant for $4,000, which will pay for recording time for the groups' next projects, new CD and a music video. Carl's praise for Victoria Secrets was very apparent with his comment - "These kids can really make music, when they come together, they really get it."

The turnout was fantastic; the music got us dancing when we weren't eating and this is where I really need to thank Susan King from Pine Reflections Garden Centre. Together we went shopping for the light buffet we were setting up and I was a little overwhelmed by the judging of quantities needed and just what to buy. Susan volunteered to take this on and prepared all the food. The food looked appetizing and was certainly deli-

Again, yes I'm going to say this again — that's what I like about living here, we have real community spirit, if you ask for help it's there. This was a fundraiser for Community Living Haliburton and we raised some good cash for them and we had fun doing it! Thank you to all the volunteers and local business for their donations. Also, a special thanks to Canoe FM, Moose FM, the Times and Echo for all free advertising. It wouldn't be much of a fundraiser if you have to pay for everything!

Decisions are made together and there is a definite flexibility in this. It's more than a committed marriage; it's a friendship that you don't see too often. On the other side of the coin I might become an alcoholic by the time they leave Friday. Like clockwork at 5 p.m. is martini time which I don't object to ... actually I could get used to it. Let's ride!

At the Country Music Jamboree Sunday. the Minden Lioness and the recreation staff at S.G. Nesbitt arena made a presentation to Brad Trumbell of a brand new threewheeled bike. Trumbell had a two-wheel bike for a couple of years and it was getting old. The recreation staff and the community were scared he was going to get hurt on his bike. The recreationstaff started a fundraiser to help buy Trumbell a bike and the community was very generous. When the Minden Lioness club found out about the cost they decided they would donate the rest of the money needed. Trumbell was excited to receive his new three-wheel

Left, kitchen organizer Lois Rigney, left, serves up pancakes with flair. Now in it's third decade of existence, the event is a fundraiser for the church that supports local organizations, such as the food banks and Canoe FM. Held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. the breakfast saw more than 100 people come through, who dined on pancakes and sausages served with Wintergeen maple syrup and prepared by volunteers. Right, pancakes of all shapes and sizes were enjoyed. Below, the annual Maplefest held at the Lochlin United Church on April 14 had all the right ingredients to be a successful event.

Memoriam Verse #51 Call 1-866-541-6757 Today

In memoriam

DAVIS, Murray - In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather passed away April 14, 1996

They say there is a reason They say that time will heal But neither time nor reason Will change the way we feel. For no-one knows the heartache That lies behind our smiles No-one knows how many times We have broken down and cried. We want to tell you something So there won't be any doubt You are so wonderful to think of But so hard to be without. Sadly missed and always remembered by your daughter; Marilyn, Bill, Chad & Brandon

The joys that he missed on life's highway. May he find in God's garden of rest.

The arrival of a Lee Valley catalogue in the mailbox is always a banner day here at the old farmhouse. With a focus on Earth Day and environmentally friendly practices the April 2012 issue was no exception especially the item Powder Fly Trap - # EM225 @ $19.95.

Welcome as sunny days are by afternoon the original house windows are buzzing with annoying cluster flies emerging from their winter dormancy. When strategically located in keeping with the fly's natural behaviour patterns this non-toxic trap can reportedly capture as many as 1,000 insects before requiring disposal.

Once inside the fly is coated with an extremely fine, natural powder derived from ground eggshells and unable to escape.

The eggs in our fridge are presently sharing space with another environmental champion - the Nematodes.

Available at Home Hardware and kindly delivered by friend Nancy the Nematodes naturally host bacteria which attack lawn grubs and then self-destruct as organic matter not harmful to anything.

The tennis ball size container, carefully sealed and labeled, hopefully should not be mistaken for an edible item while we await the proper application conditions in the doorvard.

For me their name conjures up playful mind images of cape clad microscopic green warriors worthy of a Steven Spielberg epic film titled March of the Nematodes complete with majestic musical score.

The very popular annual dinner auction hosted by the Kinmount Committee for Planning and Economic Development will be held on Saturday, April 28 at the Galway

To avoid disappointment and attend this fun filled evening give Diane a call at 705-488-2635 or Joyce at 705-488-2687 for tickets at a cost of $25/person. If interested in donating an item contact Diane at the number above.

Our pair of Canada geese arrived on time but were caught in the weather change. Joined one morning on the pond by another five pairs they left and have never returned. I miss their daily antics.
